The western gable wall of the new stable in course of erection in Jersey City for the Wells-Fargo Express Company collapsed yesterday, burying a number of workmen in the ruins. One man was killed instantly, one received mortal injuries, and a third is lying in the hospital in a critical condition. Nine others were more or less injured. The following is the list of killed and injured:

KILLED. George Barrett of Twenty-seventh street and Seventh avenue, New York, an iron worker.

Michael Killavani. Colgate street, Jersey City, skull crushed. Cannot recover.
Michael Garano. aged 33, 204 Hester street,
New York. Will probably die.

Nicolo Gludi. aged 32, 74 Colgate street, Jersey City, severe scalp wound, Nicolo Patrano, aged 28, 397 Fourth street. Jersey City, cut in the head, .. Arseni Gentili, aged 28, 897 Pourth street, Angelo Beneditti, aged 40, 430 Becond street. contusions on the back and head. Thomas McClintick, 13 Montgomery street bruised about the body and limbs.

head cut and legs crushed. Emil Hagen, 105 Cherry street. New York, elight bruises.

Vito More, aged 80, 76 Colgate street, Jersey City, arms broken. Charles Tighe, Wayne street, injured about the head.

The injured men, with the exception of Mo-Clintock and Tighe, who were taken home. were removed to St. Francis Hospital.

When the wall fell the noise made by the erash was heard a long distance. Police Bergeant Bucklee, who lives opposite the building hastened to a neighboring drug store and telephoned to Police Headquarters. Chief Murphy at once telephoned to the hospitals. and ambulances were sent to the scene. The reserves from the First and Second precincts were sont out.

The wounded men were quickly taken out of the debris, although the work of rescuing them was particularly perilous, as other parts of the wall were tottering in the high wind, and looked as if they might fall at any moment. The body of Barrett, the man who was killed. was found on the second floor pinned under a neavy beam which law across his neck. Chief of Police Murphy. Chief Engineer Farrier of the Fire Department, Building Inspector James C. Clarko, Fire Commissioner Brown, and other officials a ded in directing the work of rescu-ing the wounded. Michael Brennan, the contractor who is erecting the building, was almost frantic. He thought his brother was buried were insane. Afterward he learned that his brother was sale. When the crash came the near who were working to ther portions of the building were terribly frightened and fell over each other in their hasts to escape. Rumors of the whitest character were circulated impediately after the accident. One was that it ten men had been killed. Another which seemed to have some foundation was that several children who were playing near the wail had been killed. Both rumors proved to be unfounded. The street was practically closer to traffic for the remainder of the day. There is considerable differences of opinion as to the cause of the acident and as to who is responsible for it. There was a high wind and workmen were engaged in rai-ling a truss into pace with a derrick and windlass. Guy ropes were attached to the trust and astened to the post the gaile wall. It is believed that the wind gave a swaying motion to the heavy fron trust and the guy lopes tightened and pulled in top of the wall over. Eyewitnesses say that the top of the wall over. Eyewitnesses say that the top of the wall over. Eyewitnesses say that the top in the gaile out and fell in the opiosite direction. Three other trustes, which were already in place an accuract by purlines, west down in the general cra-h with beams and timbers, filling the interior of the building at that end with dabris. The building had been completed up to the top of the fourth tory, as high as it was intended to go. The demolished portion makes a break about ninety-six feet long in the shape of a half mon. A sunail section of the front wall, which was forn down during the afternoon.

A Sun reporter questioned the contractor, some of the sub-contractors, the architect, and the Building Inspector. Michael Brennan, the contractor said:

"It was not my fault. The work was done in the best manner possible, and I can attribute the accident only to the wind. The materials issed wer the best, and an inspector employed by the company watched the construction constantly."

J. Knight, the superintendent employed by the company watch brother was sale. When the crash came the et who were working in other portions of the is sed were the best, and an inspecior employed by the company watched the construction constantly.

J. Knight, the superintendent employed by best of McCord of Broadway. New York, who we constructed of Broadway is the secondent of Broadway. New York, who we constructed of good material and in a work manifest manner the swaying of the fron truss would not have caused it to full. If the wall had been substantial and the trust had even been forced violently against it is could have done nothing more than numely a hole through it.

L. H. Hoome, the architect, attributes the mediant at it if to the wind. He said:

The build arg was being erected in as good a manual as possible. The best material was used and the workness were experienced. The wall was twenty incess thick to a height of reventeen feet, and sixteen inches thick above that. There is no doubt that the accident was caused by the gaie, which came in heavy puffs a device, in the wind, Nobody is to blame. The work is not the decident was caused in the wall, Nobody is to blame. Building Inspector Clarke made a thorough investigation and concluded that the fault was not in descrive work or masonry. He says it is one of those singular accidents which nobady can exist.

Mr. Parker, the sub-contractor for the car-nor in deservice work or masonry. He says it is one of those singular accidents which nobely can explain.

Mr. Parker, the sub-contractor for the carbudy can explain.

Thomas McCintic, one of the Iron workers who was helping to set the truss, was found in bed with his heat bandaged. He said:

Soveral other and the purpose of helsing it when the truss for the purpose of helsing it when the truss for the purpose of helsing it when the struss far the purpose of helsing it when something and knocked silly for a few seconds. When I recovered and looked about me saw nothing but a mass of timber and iron work inited to either in a confinsed beap. I take to the slide line, which is used for helsting purposes, and slid down on it to to the lower floor. I lost no time in getting out of the building. The truss we were rutting up was 96 feet long and 22 inches deep. Barrett, the poor fellow who was killed, was standing by my side when the secificant occurred, and we were laughing and loking with each other.

Thomas Finn a carrenter, was standing on a scaffold at the northwestern corner of the building when the wall iel and carried away all the scaffolding except the two planks on which he was attanding. He clung to the top of the wall, trembling, and expecting every moment to be his last. When the dust cleared away and he found that he was safe, he climbed carefully down from his perilous place.

The various lots described below represent the Entire Stock of a leading maker. It became ours during the past week at a very large concession from manufacturing cost.

The Garments are all in the most fashionable styles, made up from newest shades and combinations in Flannel, Tricot, Cashmere, Brilliantine, and Broadcloth.

It is very fortunate, both for our customers and ourselves, that we are enabled to give such remarkable values in Ladies' Suits during Thanksgiving Week.
